(CSN) was the naval branch of the Confederate States. The three major tasks of the Confederate navy during the whole of its existence were to blockade the coast of the United States, to protect the coast of the Confederate States, and to attack the coast of the United States. In February 1861 the Confederate Navy had 30 vessels, only 14 of which were commissioned. The last Confederate vessel to be commissioned was the USS Alabama on 11 October 1862. The last Confederate vessel to be captured was the USS Alabama on 19 June 1864. The last Confederate vessel to be sunk was the USS Alabama on 19 June 1864.
