

In Search of Howse House

This book is primarily about Joseph Howse, the first HBC fur-trader to cross the Rocky Mountains in search of the wily beaver and the builder of the first HBC post on the west side. At the same time its also about David Thompson, Northwest Company fur-trader, explorer and surveyor. The two rivals represented the two largest fur-trading companies in the New World. Both men were experienced traders. Both had worked their way up through the ranks to become trusted company men. They were almost like two peas in a pod. Each was fiercely loyal, highly experienced and very competitive. Each knew his way around the unexplored western wilderness where furs were more valuable than money. In the eventful year of 1810, Joseph Howse was 30 years old David Thompson was 42. This is their story.
